

Howard N. Sinclair
Barbara F. Sinclair

This is the story. . . .

of school year 1969-70
In these pages, the pictures, the words
That try to tell that story. . .

It was a year of many things

of games
and studies
of plays
and books
of dances dates and rings

And there were cars
and ringing bells
and lots of queens and kings

Good times bad times

Laughs
and tears

Yes-- a year of many things

Crashing into

BISON

1970

Dallas County R-1
School District

Buffalo, Missouri

the Seventies. . .

It is difficult for youth, especially in Elementary and Junior-Senior High School, to be genuinely serious about the opportunities available to them when it would appear that an ever increasing number of adult Americans may be becoming more and more indifferent about such original American attributes as free enterprise, freedom of thought and action, freedom of religion, and just freedom generally.

A serious examination of ourselves, our attitudes, our opportunities and our determination-or lack thereof-to take advantage of them, may be more important now than ever before.

Sincerely,

Lillard A. Mallory

BHS Welcoming committee--Hi there!

When Mrs. Harmon wasn't looking, I sneaked around behind the desk, you see, and.....

A moment later, her glasses cracked!

Could be...

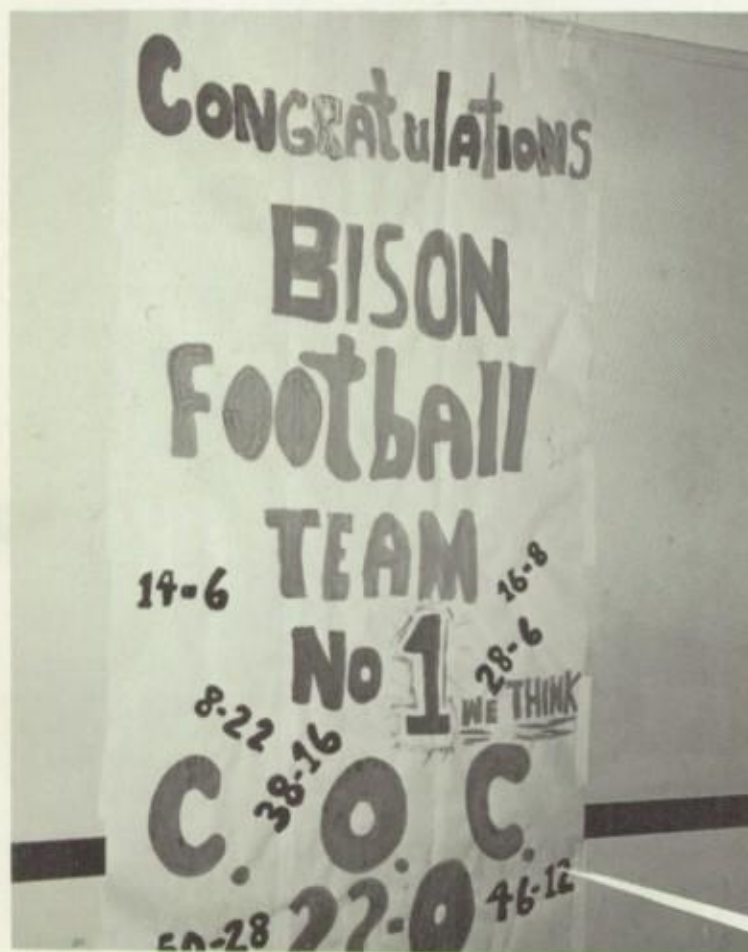

Okay--but what happens when the bell rings?

I wonder what would happen if I used a ten dollar bill?

Would You Believe...

We're number one?

523...524...525?

It's been up there five minutes now and the bell's about to ring?

They're breaking out at mid-night?

It was a very wet Christmas Parade?

Vocational Agriculture

Under the guidance of vocational agriculture instructor Virgil Walden, students learn the basic principles of agriculture and agribusiness. Voag students get plenty of opportunity to put their new-learned skills to practical use.

One of the most unusual features of the school program is KBFL, the first high school radio station in Missouri. Wayne Lemons is the station manager and directs the broadcasting classes. Student-operated KBFL serves Dallas County and the surrounding area, the year around.

Science and

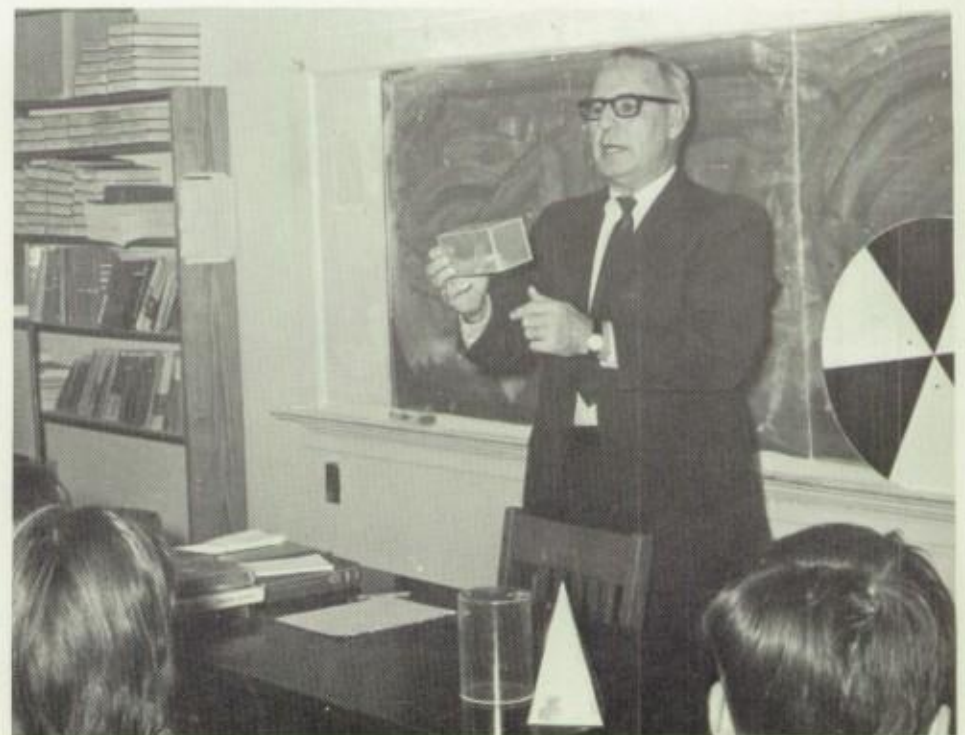

Stress in modern science instruction is on learning through discovery. Here students put into practice the laboratory skills they have acquired.

A busy man, Ramie Sample coordinated all math and science courses in the school district as well as teaching chemistry, algebra and seventh grade mathematics.

In his first year at Buffalo, John Walsh taught the basic principles of science to seventh graders.

A familiar face on the Buffalo campus, Avera Harriman devoted his energies this year to students enrolled in algebra and junior high math classes.

Mathematics

Jeanne Price watches as eighth graders perform a science experiment. Besides her junior high science and home economics courses, Mrs. Price taught a class in family relations to senior high girls.

Returning to Buffalo after several years absence, Bud Bennett served as biology instructor and worked with elementary and junior high boys in athletics.

Demonstrations such as this helped junior high students to learn the laws of the physical world around them.

Rex Peterson, in his second year at Buffalo, taught geometry and junior high mathematics.

Business Education

Roy Scott, young despite his years, moved close to a half century of teaching. His busy schedule included bookkeeping, business law and driver education.

Typing, shorthand and basic business courses were supervised by Chloe Gregg.

Ethel Williams, secretary to the superintendent, looks over her busy class in secretarial practice.

Art

The high school and junior high art program was under the skilled supervision of Leta Buchanan.

Driver Education

When he wasn't busy teaching general math, Lendol Condren was the man in charge of sharpening the driving skills of the now generation.

Special Education

The special education classes for both junior and senior high school students were taught by Dorothy Berry.

Study Hall

Juanita Freeman was the senior high school study hall supervisor.

Social Studies

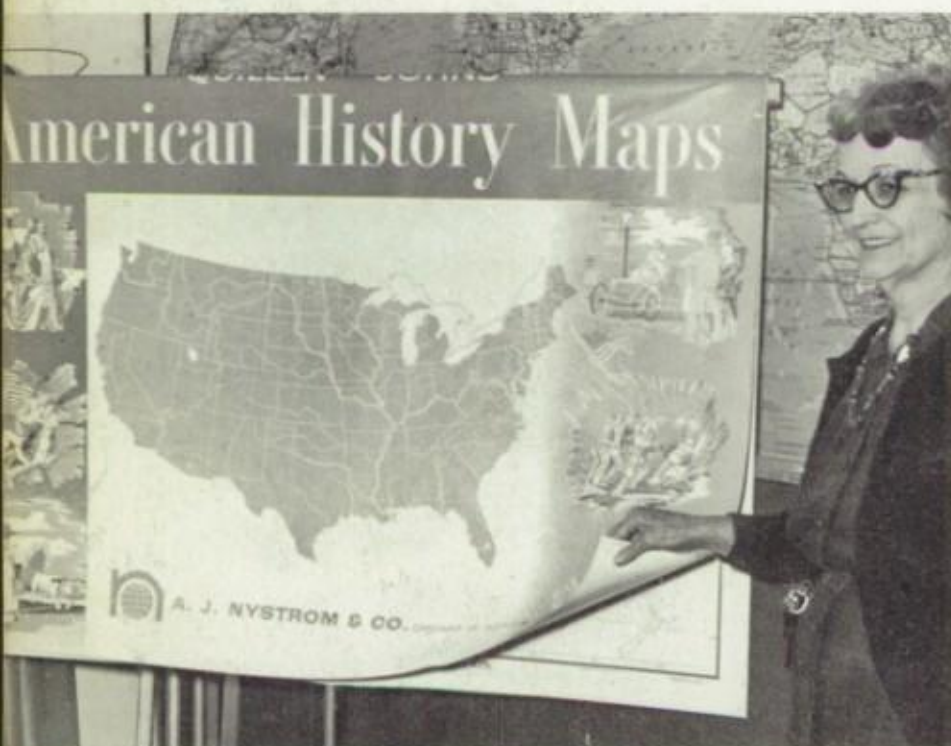

Joan Boyd calls the attention of her seventh grade social studies class to the map of Europe. Mrs. Boyd also taught sociology and psychology to senior high school students.

To illustrate a discussion point, Joe Atteberry uses a globe in one of his eighth grade social studies classes.

American history was the specialty of Cleeta Jurgens who also taught German at BHS.

Merle Grant combined world history and French for her 1969-70 teaching assignment.

Shop and Carpentry

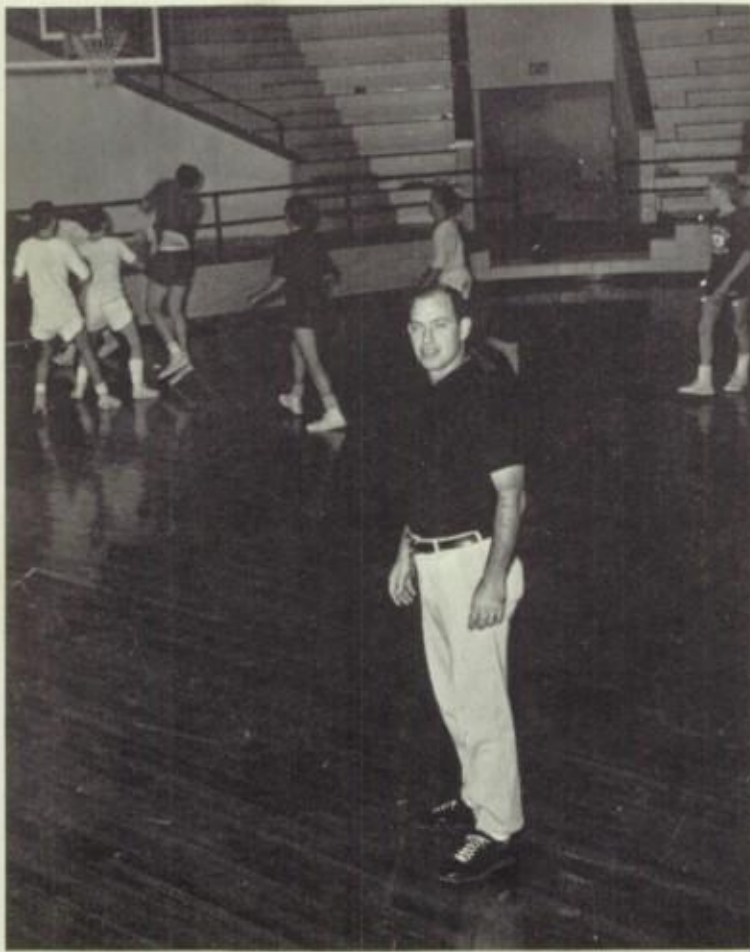

Shop classes, including woodworking, drafting and general shop, were taught by Lew McGill who also served as head football coach.

Roy Rice directed the carpentry classes as they constructed another fine house just south of campus. Shown here is the heating unit used to keep the boys from freezing on cold winter days.

Physical

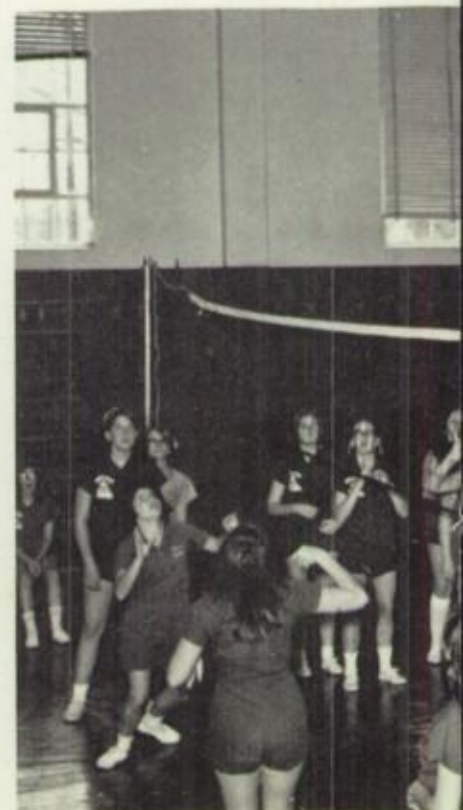

Mike Kirksey returned to Buffalo to fill the new position of school district athletic director.

June Bradley continued to supervise all senior and junior high school physical education classes for girls.

Bud Bennett took time away from his biology lab to coach fifth and sixth grade boys.

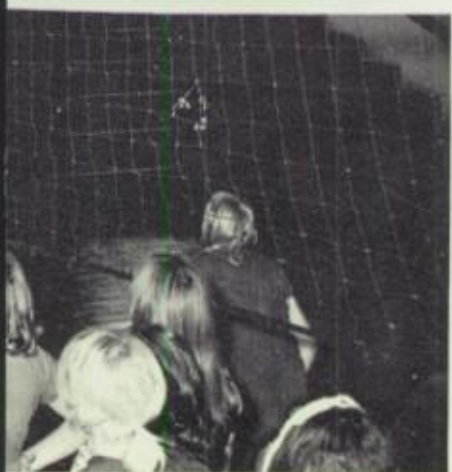

Education

A busy man, Mike Rapp taught physical education, served as assistant football coach and is shown here with his seventh grade reading class.

For the second year Robert Hammons was the Bison varsity basketball coach and a physical education instructor.

Sharon Maddux was in charge of the physical education program at the Buffalo Elementary School.

Language Arts

Freshman English was in the capable hands of Eldred Godfrey.

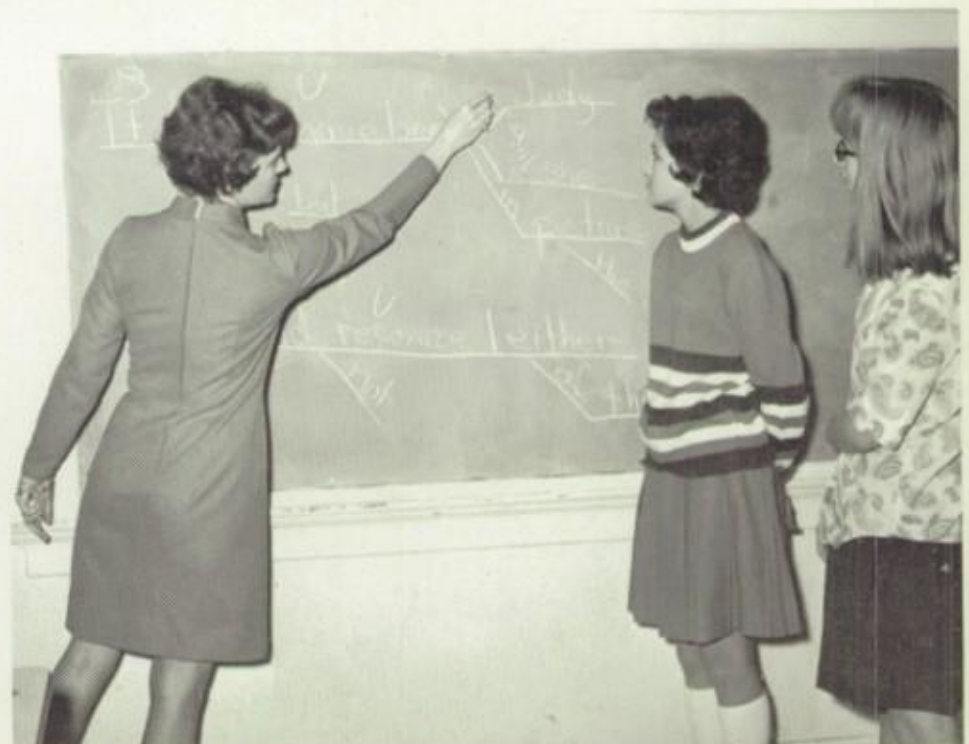

Second year teacher Mike Pulley taught both eleventh and twelfth grade English.

Two seventh graders reach for books in Grace Hill's English class.

Sentence diagrams played a part in eighth grade English classes under Barbara Clark.

Bessie Caldwell stops to help a student in one of her sophomore English classes.

Photography and Printing

Keith Kendall, who took most of the pictures for the Bison, instructed the vocational classes in photography and printing.

Library

Alice Bancroft, Assistant Librarian

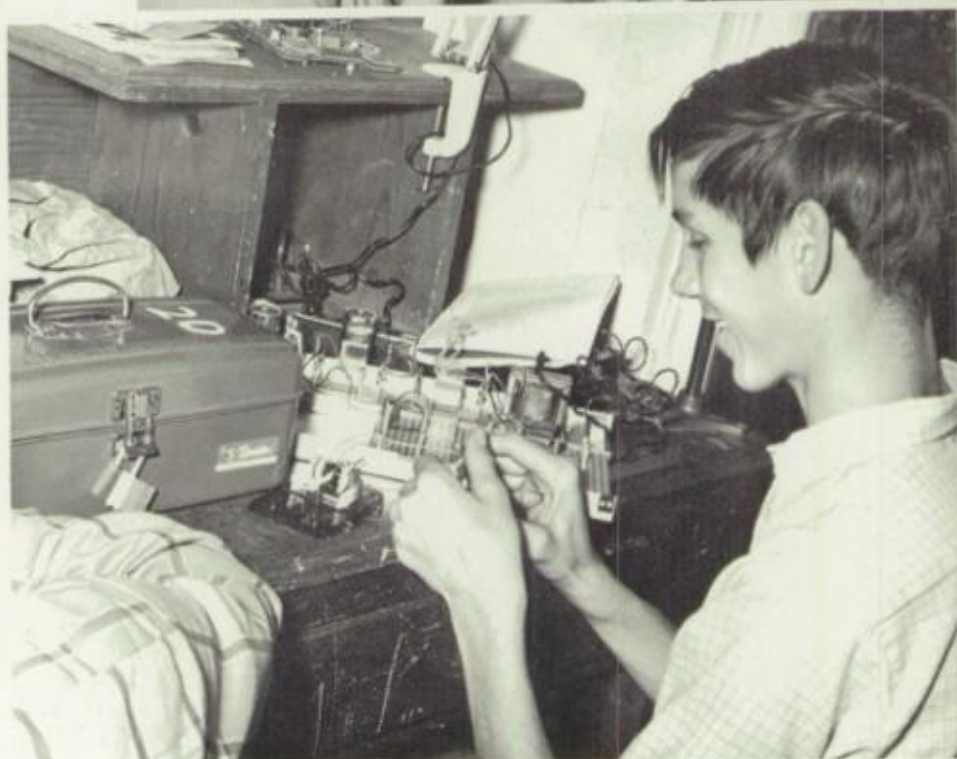

Goldie Harmon, Head Librarian

Glenn Montgomery taught vocational electronics classes, was in charge of maintaining all the districts audio-visual equipment and helped operate KBFL.

Electronics

Speech and Dramatics

Speech and dramatics classes were instructed by Bob Lee who also edited the Bison.

Home Economics

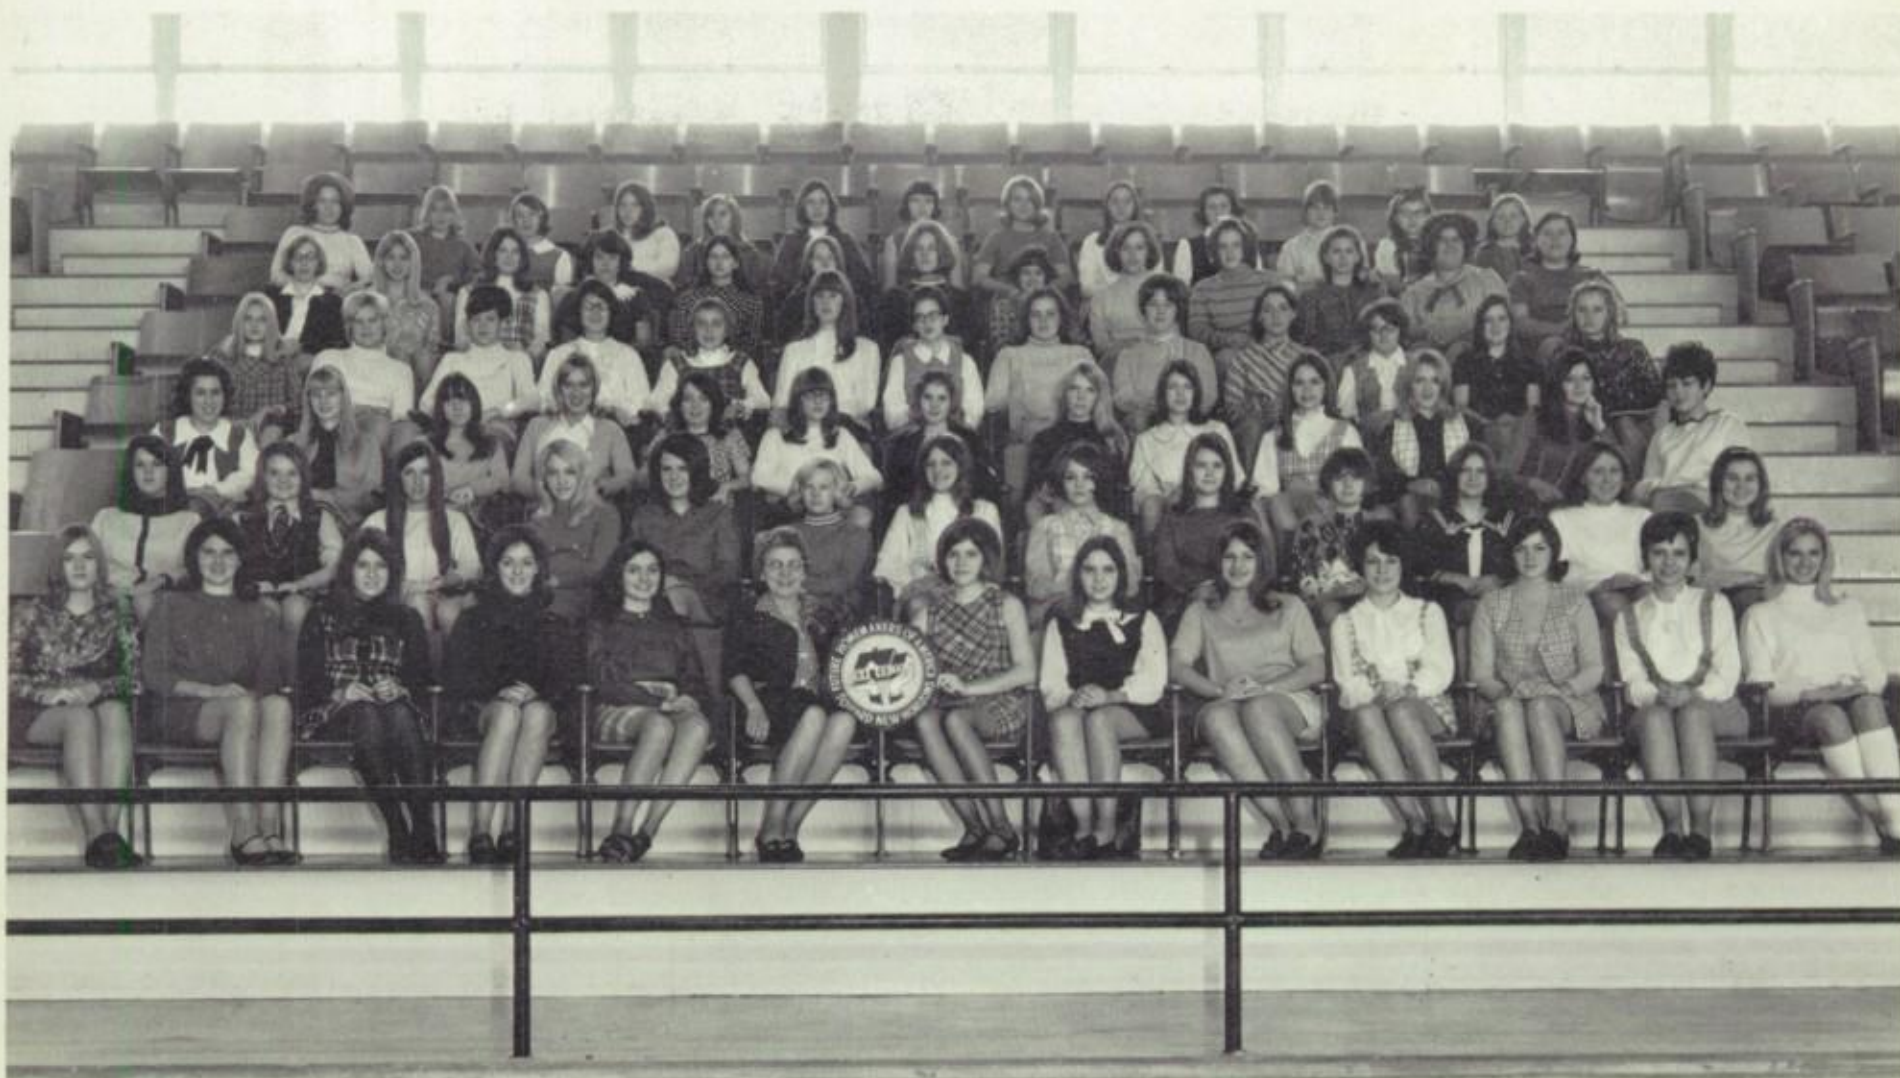

The senior high school home economics program was under the supervision of Ferrel Mallory. Mrs. Mallory also sponsored the Buffalo chapter of the FHA.

Reading

Ruth Dunkin handled special reading classes at both the junior and senior high school levels.

Christmas

Miss Merry Christmas 1969, Gwen Divelbiss

Featured at the annual Christmas program was the combined Junior and senior concert band under the direction of Brian Elhard.

Rain couldn't dampen the spirit at the Christmas Parade.

Miss Merry Christmas attendants Karen Sadler, Brenda McDaniel and Brenda Shockley.

Highlight of the Christmas Program was the Nativity Pageant and the voices of the junior high chorus.

Bison Football Was Fine In Sixty-Nine

It was the greatest season ever for Buffalo football as the Bison Varsity rolled to seven wins in eight games and a first place finish in the Central Ozark Conference. At the season end, happy gridders carried head coach Lew McGill from the field after blasting the Bolivar Liberators, 22-0.

A fine offense featured the power running of John Hale and the sharp passing of Tom Shewmaker to ends Ray Whitney and Denny Howser. Combined with a rugged defensive unit that was led by Bud Farrell, Kayton Parks and Leroy Young, the Bisons won their last six games in a row by convincing margins.

Seven Victims of the Buffalo Stampede. . .

Johnny Hill tightropes the sideline as he fights for a first down.

Robert Gibson takes a pitchout from Tom Shewmaker and goes for big yardage.

Ray Whitney clutches another Shewmaker pass for a touchdown.

Linebackers Leroy Young, Kim Schwanke and Robert Gibson kept opponents honest.

Bison's rugged offensive linemen: Parks, Farrell, Mizell, Swanigan, Owenby and Lambeth.

Coaches Lew McGill and Mike Rapp had good reason to smile.

Defensive halfbacks, Mickey Davies and Rick Petree were the safety factor.

Junior halfbacks Robert Potter and Tom McGath made the yards.
